

At the Art Gallery

Vincent: Hi Monita! I saw you from a distance and I figured that was you! I knew you'd come to see John Lennon and Yoko Ono.

Monita: Oh hi Vincent! How nice to bump into you here. I was just thinking of calling you up and seeing what you've been up to these days. Have you seen the entire exhibit yet?

Vincent: Yes, I've been here since the doors opened. I even tried all the try-it-for-yourself participation sections.

Monita: I really appreciate that Ono created this new kind of relationship with spectators and fellow artists, inviting them to play an active part in the creative process.

Vincent: And the other part of this exhibition is especially fitting right now. It's an archive of collaborative projects for peace undertaken by Ono and Lennon. Make sure you don't miss it.

Monita: You bet! Talk to you soon. Bye Vincent!

Vincent: Enjoy your time here. See you soon, Monita!
